I. Business Results and Forecasts

(1) Performance Analysis

During fiscal 2007, the consolidated period ended September 30, 2007, the Japanese economy continued to expand, supported by higher corporate earnings and steady consumer spending. On the international front, however, the subprime mortgage crisis that originated in the United States became critical in June 2007, prompting a credit crunch in the U.S. financial market and volatile swings in exchange rates. The impact of the crisis spread worldwide, eroding global economic stability.

In the domestic finance sector, where the FinTech Global (FGI) Group is active, demand for funds remained steady, as did interest in structured finance -- the Group's forte field -- as a means to support corporate growth. Unfortunately, the upheaval caused by the subprime mortgage crisis in the U.S. financial market, while temporary, forced financial institutions in Japan to take a tougher stance on lending operations, especially loans related to real estate -- which happen to form a key element of the Group's property development securitization arrangements -- and to be more selective in their investments, in an effort to ensure profitability and borrower quality.

Given the operating environment and with property development securitization arrangements a key source of profit, the Group sought to maximize the potential for multiple profit opportunities from each financial arrangement by providing bridging loans, which essentially make up for the cash shortfall that typically handicaps property developers at the phase before a building permit is granted. The connection thus formed is a gateway to arrangements for construction finance once the required building permits are in hand.

Also in Group news, FGI brought FXOnline Japan Co., Ltd. (FXO), under the scope of consolidation by acquiring a total equity stake of 44.99% between January and March 2007. Through this acquisition, FGI added FX (Foreign Exchange) business to its business résumé.

Despite solid demand for structured finance and a wider sphere of activity, FGI saw non-consolidated operating income, ordinary profit and net income fall far below stated targets. This situation reflects two key developments: first, fiscal management, namely the application of funds toward the equity stake in FXO in the first half of fiscal 2007, which required FGI to restrict investment and lending activities in its principal finance operations; and second, repercussions from the aforementioned upheaval in world financial markets, which prevented the Company from completing by September 2007 several large-scale project finance transactions, including two arrangements that assumed access to funds from U.S.-based financial institutions in Japan.

On a consolidated basis, net revenue soared 105.5% year on year, to ¥16,914 million, while ordinary profit inched up 6.6%, to ¥5,951 million. Exemplifying the challenges of the operating environment, net income tumbled 45.4%, to ¥1,767 million.

1. Investment Banking Business

1) Arrangement Operations

In its arrangement services, FGI packages several financial transactions, such as asset securitization, into a structure, adjusts this structure to accommodate investors and other participants in the arrangement, and then verifies the content from legal, accounting and taxation perspectives.

i) Arrangement Services

Income from arrangement contracts comes from transactions with no credit enhancement facility. For details on arrangements with credit enhancement, please see ii) below.

FGI maintains an edge over major banks in the speed at which the Company assembles structured finance arrangements and in the tailored approach the Company takes to formulating transactions to the specific requirements of each client.

In fiscal 2006, FGI acquired the financial resources to turn both wheels of the investment banking cart -- arrangement operations and principal finance operations -- and in fiscal 2007, the Company successfully demonstrated the reciprocal effects derived from the mutually complementary business pursuits.

To maximize its position, FGI established FinTech Principal Investment Incorporated, a joint venture with Merrill Lynch Japan Securities Co., Ltd., that falls under the Company's scope of consolidation. The new subsidiary, which opened for business in August 2007, was to underpin FGI's efforts to secure arrangement income by extending funds for transactions that have traditionally been difficult to arrange. Unfortunately, financial market upheaval in the second half of fiscal 2007 prevented completion of certain large-scale project finance arrangements that hinged on access to funds from U.S.-based financial institutions. As a result, second-half results from arrangement services fell below expectations.

Consequently, consolidated net revenue from arrangement services slipped 12.4% from a year earlier, to ¥3,271 million. Gross profit dropped 10.6%, to ¥3,082 million.

ii) Arrangement Services with Credit Enhancement

Credit enhancement is a capital risk solution through which financial risks inherent in securitization or structured finance transactions are underwritten by securities companies or insurers, such as Switzerland-based Group member Stellar Capital AG, in the form of guarantees. This facility enables FGI to create arrangements that are more inviting to the lending divisions of financial institutions.

In fiscal 2007, FGI packaged four structured finance transactions with credit enhancement underwritten by Stellar Capital. The Company also set up arrangements for which it provided the guarantees itself.

Net revenue from arrangement services with credit enhancement amounted to ¥607 million, down 35.4% year on year. Gross profit on revenue declined 34.5% to ¥593 million.

On a consolidated basis, net revenue from arrangement operations in fiscal 2007 amounted to ¥3,878 million, down 17.0% over fiscal 2006. Gross profit came to ¥3,676 million, down 15.6%.

For reference, arrangement fees as a percentage of the aggregate value of arrangements packaged by FGI in fiscal 2007 was 1.63%, based on a total contract value of ¥237.5 billion and arrangement income of ¥3,878 million.

2) Principle Finance Operations

FGI itself acts as a provider of funds, in the capacity of investor or lender, in structured finance transactions when, for instance, the Company views a particular arrangement with acceptable risk-return but the transaction cannot be closed on schedule because external participants require additional time for assessment. In such cases, FGI will extend funds to facilitate completion of the transaction and will be reimbursed when the expected external funding comes through.

FGI's ability to offer funds hinges on high-level assessment skills and solid funding capabilities accumulated as an arranger in the field of structured finance. Because the Company utilizes this function to become a partner in the arrangement, assuming risks associated with the position of originator as well as provider of funds, the transactions acquire a higher level of credibility.

In fiscal 2007, FGI was more reserved in its principal finance investment and lending activities. In the first half, this self-imposed limitation had its roots in a change in fiscal perspective, namely the application of funds toward equity in FXO, and in internal transaction processing, which cancelled out income from special purpose companies (SPCs) included under the scope of consolidation and into which the Company had invested funds. In the second half, FGI was unable to close certain large-scale project finance arrangements as planned because of lingering problems associated with the subprime mortgage crisis in addition to tougher criteria in the domestic building standards law in the wake of scandals arising from the falsification of structural calculations and longer wait times for building permits. As a result, the Company did not reach its goal for loan fees and did not meet its target for revenues from principal finance operations.

From fiscal 2007, FGI has increased the level of corporate loans extended to clients to facilitate structured finance arrangements. Consolidated subsidiary FinTech Real Estate, Inc. (FRE), invested in tokumei kumiai (silent partnerships) for which FGI had created structured finance arrangements.

In September 2007, FGI transferred to a third party all shares and all claims held in ASAP Payment System, Inc., a consolidated subsidiary involved in the credit card debt factoring business.

Despite the challenges, net revenue from principal finance operations, on a consolidated basis rose 4.7% year on year, to ¥2,929 million. Gross profit, however, reached ¥2,295 million, down 13.3%.

3) Other Investment Banking Operations

FGI places profits from administrative and cash management services and profits generated by FinTech Global Securities, Inc. (FGS), under other investment banking operations.

Administrative services are business procedures -- that is, cash management services -- executed on behalf of SPCs for which FGI has completed property development securitization, liquidation-for-profit transactions and other financial arrangements. Cash management services encompass 1) the preparation and revision of plans, such as the annual budget drafts and business financing agendas of SPCs for which FGI has arranged property development securitization and liquidation-for-profit arrangements; 2) final decisions on payments and receivables; and 3) cash-flow management.

FGS acts as an agent for products, such as loan credits and investment securities, arranged by FGI and sells alternative funds in overseas markets.

Until fiscal 2007, interest income from corporate loans was recorded under other investment banking operations, but the growing importance of this revenue source prompted FGI to book it under principal finance operations instead, as of fiscal 2007 year-end.

Consequently, net revenue from other investment banking operations dropped 35.5%, on a consolidated basis, to ¥177 million, in fiscal 2007, compared with the amount recorded in fiscal 2006, and gross profit declined 35.9%, to ¥175 million.

Based on the aforementioned performances, investment banking business generated a total of ¥6,985 million in fiscal 2007, a 9.8% decrease over fiscal 2006. Gross profit slipped 15.5%, to ¥6,147 million.

2. Reinsurance/Financial Guarantee Business

The reinsurance/financial guarantee business hinges on Stellar Capital, which provides guarantees on arrangements with credit enhancement packaged by FGI, and Crane Reinsurance Limited, which was established by Stellar Capital in Bermuda to underwrite reinsurance, primarily policies held by major property management companies in Japan to cover the household affects of tenants.

In fiscal 2007, Stellar Capital underwrote the credit enhancement portion of four arrangements packaged by FGI with this facility.

Temporary fallout from the U.S. subprime mortgage crisis -- namely, financial market upheaval and exchange rate fluctuations -- did impact Stellar Capital's surplus fund investments, but the company was able to achieve favorable investment returns over the full year.

In conjunction with revision of the Insurance Business Law in 2006, reinsurance underwriting schemes that had been used up to fiscal 2006 came under review. Some schemes were found to be in need of restructuring, and the scheme geared to the transition of existing specialized underwriters into small-claim, short-term insurance business, by April 2008, is currently being refined. But Crane Reinsurance remains committed to underwriting reinsurance for such policies as household effects.

Entrust, Inc., presents business models that generate profits for major national and regional rental housing management companies in Japan utilizing original rent guarantee services. Diligent efforts to realize alliances with major rental housing management companies did not lead to any agreements in fiscal 2007 but will -- and actually already are -- paying off in fiscal 2008.

Overall, results from the reinsurance/financial guarantee business were excellent, with net revenue soaring 261.2%, to ¥1,720 million. Gross profit jumped 22.5%, to ¥392 million.

3. FX (Foreign Exchange) Business

FGI's participation in the FX (Foreign Exchange) business is through FXO, which undertakes online forex margin trading. The business results achieved by FXO between April 1, 2007 and September 30, 2007, are included in FGI's consolidated performance for fiscal 2007.

During its special six-month fiscal term, FXO attracted more clients by reinforcing its marketing efforts and by implementing a tighter rate spread on trades, effective from June. Heightened volatility in forex markets in July and August also benefited the company, leading to higher trading volume from clients.

The FX (Foreign Exchange) business generated net revenue of ¥3,139 million and gross profit of ¥3,139 million. Year-on-year comparisons are not provided since FXO was not brought under consolidation until fiscal 2007.

4. Real Estate Related Business

Net revenue from real estate related business comprises brokerage commissions on real estate transactions executed by FRE as well as rental income and proceeds from the sale of property held by SPCs under the scope of consolidation.

In fiscal 2007, an SPC under the FGI consolidated umbrella sold marketable real estate holdings. This sale accounted for ¥3,658 million of net revenue and ¥2,569 million of cost of revenue. However, the sale had no impact on net income because the consolidated equity ratio in this SPC is zero.

In the end, real estate related business generated net revenue of ¥5,069 million. Gross profit came to ¥1,752 million.

For reference, in previous fiscal years, real estate related results were recorded under Other Business.

(2) Fiscal 2008 Forecasts

Fiscal 2007 marked the second year of a three-year medium-term management plan that began October 1, 2005. It was to be a cornerstone period of content building in which the Group actively increased staffing levels, reinforced business capabilities and enhanced training, fiscal status and internal controls. Successfully prepared for the third and final year of the plan, the Group would be primed for growth in fiscal 2008.

Unfortunately, the Group fell short of its fiscal 2007 objectives, primarily for two reasons. First, it appears more time is needed to forge an internal control structure that properly addresses full-scale enforcement of the Financial Instruments and Exchange Law, and second, more training is required to hone the skills of an expanded workforce.

In response, the Group will continue to reinforce business content and complete these activities with a broader search for fund suppliers, a structural shift toward non-real estate related operations, and a companywide perspective to risk management. The underlying challenge is to pursue innovative business activities that typify the unique qualities of FGI.

In fiscal 2007, FGI worked to strengthen Group management and reviewed the business plans of subsidiaries. In fiscal 2008, the Company will prioritize the selection and concentration of management resources, based on the results achieved in fiscal 2007.

Twice in fiscal 2007, FGI had to revise its performance forecasts downward. Revisions are undeniably disconcerting to shareholders, so to avoid a repetition of this situation in fiscal 2008 and given increasing uncertainty in the real estate market and unsettled financial conditions, the Company will consider the four points listed below in determining forecasts.

- (1) The liquidity shortfall -- the credit crunch -- that the U.S. subprime mortgage crisis triggered in financial markets is not necessarily over and lingering issues could lead to a scarcity of fluid funds in financial markets. Generally speaking, it will become more difficult to arrange structured finance transactions. Although proven results will foster more inquiries for the Company's arrangement services and underpin growth of its high-profit fee business, the number of processable arrangements may fall, primarily because more time is needed to create arrangements.
- (2) It is unclear how conditions in the real estate market will evolve, so higher risk on investments and loans for real estate development is a possibility. FGI will take a more conservative approach in its screening standards for investments and loans and carefully select arrangements for execution. For these reasons, principal finance balance of the Company may be strictly controlled. Profitability may rise, as a lack of fund suppliers causes interest rates to go up.
- (3) To avert a downturn in performance, FGI will exclude from performance forecasts such components as difficult-to-package large-scale transactions with massive fund procurement -- including those transactions that remained unclosed at the end of September 2007 -- and returns on equity investment in real estate for which earnings are difficult to predict.
- (4) FGI will prioritize the allocation of management resources to new fields other than real estate, which have not been actively incorporated into performance forecasts to date, even if they may present lower profitability than real estate projects, and to credit enhancement services, a forte segment which integrates financing and insurance. This focus will help to diversify and stabilize the Company's profit structure.

Based on this operating environment, FGI estimates net revenue at ¥17,607 million, ordinary profit at ¥6,853 million and net income at ¥1,991 million, on a consolidated basis.

Expectations by business segment are presented below.

1. Investment Banking Business

Looking at past arrangement results, FGI recorded ¥262.2 billion in fiscal 2006 and ¥237.5 billion in fiscal 2007, and if large-scale transactions planned for completion in fiscal 2007 had actually been closed on time, the total would have been around ¥380 billion.

In fiscal 2008, revenue from arrangement operations may settle around ¥300 billion -- an amount that reflects the Company's decision to exclude large-scale transactions from estimates as well as the possibility of a lower number of processable components within overall arrangements paralleling a need for more time to complete the transactions.

Arrangement fees, including fees on arrangements with credit enhancement, as a percentage of aggregate arrangement value were 1.79% in fiscal 2006 and 1.63% in fiscal 2007. The percentage is likely to hold at 1.63% in fiscal 2008, as the increasing difficulty involved in creating arrangements drives fees upward. This would mean arrangement fees settle around ¥4,976 million in fiscal 2008.

A breakdown of investments and loans as at September 30, 2007, showed loans receivable, trade at ¥42.6 billion and investments in securities, trade at ¥3.9 billion, for an investment and loan balance of ¥46.5 billion. For details, please refer to the summary of non-consolidated financial statements announced on the same date as these materials were released.

Anticipating aftereffects from the subprime mortgage crisis to linger in fiscal 2007, FGI expects seed money to reach about ¥41.0 billion, based on fiscal 2007 investment and loan results. The average balance of investments and loans should rest at ¥35.0 billion, while principal finance operations generate returns in the vicinity of ¥3.2 billion.

The consolidated forecast for revenue from investment banking business in fiscal 2008 is ¥8,555 million and for ordinary profit, ¥3,793 million.

2. Reinsurance/Financial Guarantee Business

Profits from the reinsurance/financial guarantee business include income generated by Stellar Capital from underwriting guarantees in arrangements packaged by FGI with credit enhancement as well as income earned by Entrust on services to guarantee rent in the event tenants are in arrears and to guarantee restitution costs in the event tenants are evicted.

Factoring in financial conditions and the state of the real estate market and seeking to be more selective in its choice of credit enhancement transactions, Stellar Capital will strive to meet again in fiscal 2008 the performance levels achieved in fiscal 2007.

At Crane Re, the business spotlight is on underwriting reinsurance with healthy risk, such as coverage taken out by major domestic rental housing management companies to insure the household effects of tenants.

The revised Insurance Business Law prompted a shift among existing specialized underwriters into small-claim, short-term insurance businesses, which in turn brought about a review of reinsurance underwriting schemes that had been used up to fiscal 2006. Some schemes were found to be in need of restructuring. To deal with this situation, Crane Re will be forced to temporarily halt the preparation of new policies for existing clients in the specified insurance sector.

At this point in time, the company cannot confirm the date to begin underwriting activities under the new schemes in April 2008, although this is the goal. Therefore, the company is taking a conservative view to the prevailing situation and has set its revenue target at zero. Nevertheless, insurance premiums are apportioned according to policy duration and recorded as monthly income, and a fixed amount of income will be secured from existing policies again in fiscal 2008.

Entrust is looking forward to turning a profit in fiscal 2008, buoyed by the October 2007 signing of a business outsourcing contract for rent guarantee services with a major rental housing management company.

Fixed costs are likely to rise, paralleling the launch of a pilot program for the financial guarantee business.

Based on these factors, management anticipates revenues of ¥516 million but an ordinary loss of ¥20 million, on a consolidated basis.

3. FX (Foreign Exchange) Business

Demand for forex margin trading should remain strong in fiscal 2008, but the business environment will become increasingly competitive, as new participants enter the field and existing participants strive to raise respective profiles with broader service content.

Although the high-profit aspect of this business will not change, expenses are likely to climb, particularly operating costs associated with effects to distinguish FXO from its rivals as well as miscellaneous expenses aimed at strengthening the internal structure.

Consequently, the forex business will probably generate net revenue of ¥6,471 million and ordinary profit of ¥2,707 million.

4. Real Estate Related Business

Earnings from real estate related business will comprise brokerage commissions on real estate transactions executed by FRE as well as rental income and proceeds from the sale of property held by SPCs under the scope of consolidation. But it is difficult to pinpoint profitability because actual results depend greatly on the unknown factors -- the existence of projects, fluctuations in the real estate market, and the spin-off benefits gained through arrangement services for property development securitization in investment banking business.

Revenue could be way up or way down, since accounting standards differ, depending on whether ownership of a structure is through silent partnership investment or property in kind.

Based on loadable projects at the current time and excluding projects that are unlikely to come to fruition, FGI expects real estate related business to contribute ¥2,064 million in net revenue and ¥363 million in ordinary profit in fiscal 2008, in a consolidated basis.

Cautionary Statement regarding Consolidated Forecasts

Forward-looking statements, including performance forecasts presented in these materials, are based on information available to management as of this disclosure data and certain reasonable assumptions. A number of factors could cause actual results to differ greatly from expectations.

(2) Financial Review

Balance Sheet Analysis

At September 30, 2007, current assets stood at ¥82,248 million, an increase of ¥23,672 million, from a year earlier. The major components of this change were ¥4,132 million in investments in securities, trade, and ¥11,048 million in loans receivable, trade, from principal finance investment and loan activities, as well as ¥10,214 million in deposits associated with the FX (Foreign Exchange) business.

Fixed assets reached ¥8,491 million, up ¥5,838 million year on year, reflecting goodwill of ¥6,515 million, primarily from the acquisition of equity in FXO.

Current liabilities settled at ¥35,350 million, or ¥21,322 million more than at the end of September 2006. The key components of this change were ¥9,992 million in deposits from FXO's clients, ¥8,021 million in short-term debt and ¥7,099 million in long-term debt due within one year.

Fixed liabilities were ¥28,198 million, as of September 30, 2007, up ¥5,956 million from a year earlier. This change stems largely from the November 2006 early redemption of all bonds in the Company's third unsecured convertible bond-type bonds with stock acquisition rights and a reduction of ¥20,000 million in liabilities -- wherein ¥20,000 million in short-term debt was applied to bond redemption -- and to ¥22,170 million from the issue of ¥20,000,000,000 Zero Coupon Convertible Bonds due 2012. Long-term debt for the acquisition of equity in FXO accounted for ¥2,315 million of the increase in fixed liabilities.

Net assets amounted to ¥27,191 million, up ¥2,233 million year on year, primarily owing to a ¥2,105 million boost in minority interests, including FGI's share in FXO.

Consequently, at the end of September 2007, total assets stood at ¥90,740 million, liabilities, at ¥63,549 million and net assets, at ¥27,191 million, for an equity ratio of 27.6%.

Cash Flow

Cash and cash equivalents (hereafter, "cash") at September 30, 2007, was ¥15,163 million, down ¥3,554 million from a year earlier.

An analysis of cash flows during fiscal 2007 is presented below.

Net cash used in operating activities came to ¥10,000 million (¥24,266 million in FY2006). This sizable decrease reflects the use of ¥6,000 million to shore up the consolidated principal finance balance, including investments in securities, trade, and loans receivable, trade, and the use of ¥6,071 million to buoy inventory.

Net cash used in investing activities was ¥7,150 million (¥2,916 million in FY2006). The change is almost exclusively accounted for by ¥7,452 million used in the acquisition of a newly consolidated subsidiary.

Net cash provided by financing activities settled at ¥15,018 million (¥44,247 million in FY2006). The considerable decrease stems primarily from the application of proceeds totaling ¥22,059 million from the issue of the ¥20,000,000,000 Zero Coupon Convertible Bonds due 2012 toward early redemption of all bonds in the Company's third unsecured convertible bond-type bonds with stock acquisition rights. -- amounting to ¥20,200 million -- and the procurement of ¥22,059 million through long-term and short-term debt, of which ¥7,577 million was used to repay long-term debt.

Reference: Indicators of Cash Flow Status

(Fiscal years ended September 30)

	FY2004	FY2005	FY2006	FY2007
Shareholders' equity ratio (%)	44.85	42.6	40.6	27.6
Shareholders' equity ratio on a market value base (%)	—	968.6	195.1	46.8
Cash flow to liabilities with interest ratio (%)	128.3	—	—	—
Interest coverage ratio (times)	173.93	—	—	—

Notes:

1. The indicators in the table above were calculated according to the following formulas using data from the consolidated financial statements.

Shareholders' equity ratio: Shareholders' equity / Total assets

Shareholders' equity ratio on a market value basis: Total market value of stocks / Total assets

Cash flow to liabilities with interest ratio: Liabilities with interest / Operating cash flow

Interest coverage ratio: Operating cash flow / Interest payments

- All ratios have been calculated from consolidated fiscal amounts.
  - Operating cash flow refers to Cash Flows from Operating Activities, as listed in the Consolidated Statements of Cash Flows.
  - Liabilities with interest refer to all liabilities recorded on the consolidated balance sheets and for which interest is paid. Interest payments represent the amount of interest paid and appear on the Consolidated Statements of Cash Flows, under Cash Flows from Operating Activities as "Interest expenses".
2. Shareholders' equity ratio on a market value base is not provided for fiscal 2004 because the Company was not listed as of September 30, 2004.
3. Years of debt redemption and interest coverage ratios are not entered for the fiscal years ended September 30, 2005, 2006 and 2007 because the Company posted negative cash flows from operating activities.
4. Liabilities with interest for the cash flow to liabilities with interest ratio in fiscal 2007, ended September 30, 2007, does not include the ¥22,170 million generated through the issue of the ¥20,000,000,000 Zero Coupon Convertible Bonds due 2012 in February 2007 because these are zero-coupon bonds.

(3) Dividends and Basic Policy on Profit Distribution

With regard to the distribution of profits, management prioritizes the return of profits to shareholders. But this objective is tempered by a commitment to maintain internal reserves at a level sufficient to quickly and properly reinforce the business base and to fund expanding operations. Therefore, full weight is given to such factors as fiscal performance and future business development in the calculation of dividends. The payout ratio target has been around 40% of non-consolidated net income.

Notwithstanding this objective, the Company's success, or failure, in executing large-scale project finance in fiscal 2007 was not verified as of September 21, 2007, the final trading date for stock with year-end dividend rights, and therefore the Company was unable to notify shareholders of any revision to year-end dividends before this date.

In view of this special circumstance, management decided to maintain year-end dividends as originally presented in previous disclosure materials, at ¥750 per share. Combined with the interim dividend of ¥550 per share, the annual dividend amounts to ¥1,300 per share.

From fiscal 2008, management will apply a new formula for determining dividends that ensures a payout ratio of 40%. Dividends will comprise a stable component equivalent to 20% of anticipated net income and a performance-based component that weighs fiscal results against the stable component when non-consolidated net income reaches a certain benchmark.

In the event the stable dividend component exceeds 40% of non-consolidated net income in total, only the stable dividend component will be distributed to shareholders of record.

Under basic policy, a stable dividend component will be paid out twice a year, for interim and year-end settlements. The interim dividend will comprise only a stable dividend portion, and the year-end dividend will include a performance-based component tacked on to the stable dividend component.

Notwithstanding this objective, the benchmark value for the performance-based component is fiscal 2008 non-consolidated net income forecast, so if certain unanticipated factors cause actual non-consolidated net income to differ from the estimate, the performance-based component may be revised, in consideration of such variables as fiscal results and operating environment.

Retained earnings will be allocated to principal finance-related investments and loans.

(4) Business Risks

Major risk factors with the potential to impact the business activities of the Group are described below. Risk factors that are not necessarily applicable to the Group's activities but may be important to investors in their decision-making plans have been included to enhance investor-oriented disclosure practices. Forward-looking statements are based on assumptions formed by executives of the Group from information current as of November 14, 2007.

a) Risks inherent in Expanding Operations

As of September 30, 2007, the Group employed 129 regular staff members as well as 11 casual and temporary staff members. More staff will be hired as operations expand, and internal structures will be reinforced accordingly.

Any delay, however, in the establishment of a human resource structure appropriate to the scale operations caused by the inability to recruit additional staff as planned could hamper the execution of business activities under the Group umbrella and stall further expansion of current and future activities.

Furthermore, the business content of the Group is specialized and requires sophisticated know-how. A management priority is thus to attract and keep employees at a level that supports the Group's rate of growth.

The Group intends to actively recruit people with excellent skills and provide appropriate in-house training, paralleling business development. If, however, existing personnel were to leave all at once, staffing needed by the Group was not adequately maintained, programs to train new employees were not properly implemented, or management controls failed to keep up with sudden organizational expansion, then the progress of corporate growth might slow or stop and business opportunities might be lost.

b) Risk associated with Legal Restrictions

Depending on the structuring involved in asset securitization undertaken by the investment banking division, the Group is, or may be, subjected to certain legalities. The Financial Instruments and Exchange Law, in particular, may require certain official procedures, such as the registration of scheme participants as traders of financial instruments, on structuring that falls under the scope of this law, which might then precipitate circumstances that impede the formation of structuring transactions or necessitate greater cost or more time than is usually expended in the execution of such transactions.

The amendment or abrogation of laws and regulations in the future by legislative bodies and political administrations and possible reinterpretation of laws and regulations by the respective authorities are developments that could possibly narrow the scope of activities that the Group is allowed to conduct, elevate the costs that must be borne to execute such activities, and prompt the appearance of new business risks. Such changes could impact Group performance and the viability of business pursuits now and yet to come.

Amended laws and ordinances, or reinterpretation of such legislation, as well as changes in structuring could, when the Company or members of the Group seek to acquire or renew licenses and other legally required approvals, necessitate the hiring of additional personnel and obligate the Company to reinforce overall compliance, including the establishment of a firewall, which would contribute to higher compliance-related expenses.

It is possible that material facts disclosed by the Company or advice extended by the Company, in accordance with such laws and the general principles stated in the Civil Code, may be perceived, respectively, as serious falsification or misrepresentation of data, or simply inaccurate. Even if the Company is not actually at fault, calls for compensation by alleged victim raises the risk of incurring substantial litigation costs and/or a tarnished reputation.

Violation of stated legislation could cause a delay in the execution of business activities, as the authorities investigate the alleged contravention, and the Group could also be subject to punishment, including fines, suspension of business and termination of licenses and approvals.

The Company, which was registered with the authorities as a beneficial rights trader in accordance with Article 86, Item 1 of the old Trust Business Law, is now recognized as a Type 2 financial instruments business -- Kanto Local Finance Bureau License (registration) No. 1469 (Financial Instruments Trader (kinsho)) -- in accordance with Article 29 of the Financial Instruments and Exchange Law, pursuant to Supplementary Article 200, Item 1 of the Law for Partial Amendment of the Securities and Exchange Law, and trades certain financial instruments as part of asset securitization undertaken by the investment banking division.

The validity of a financial instruments business license is open-ended and therefore renewal is unnecessary. However, Article 29, Item 4 of the Financial Instruments and Exchange Law stipulates reasons for denying a license and Article 52 of the same law describes situations that warrant the cancellation of a license or the issuance of a business suspension order. As of this date, management knows of no reasons or situations that would warrant the refusal or cancellation of the Company's license, but if the Company were to lose its license or be ordered to suspend operations, such developments would impede the execution of business activities and could adversely impact fiscal performance.

The Company is registered as a moneylender -- Tokyo Government (2) License (registration) No. 28474 -- in accordance with Article 3, Item 1 of the Money-Lending Business Control and Regulation Law, which comprises regulations for loan business in Japan, and undertakes lending operations as part of asset securitization undertaken by the investment banking division. The Company's current moneylender's license is valid from April 28, 2007, to April 28, 2010.

Article 6 of the Money-Lending Business Control and Regulation Law stipulates reasons for denying a license and Article 37 and Article 38 of the same law describe situations that warrant license cancellation. As of this date, management knows of no reasons or situations that would prevent license renewal or cause cancellation of an existing license, but if the Company were unable to renew its license or loses an existing license for any reason whatsoever in the future, such status could impede the execution of business activities and could adversely impact fiscal performance.

Two consolidated subsidiaries are also registered as moneylenders: FinTech Principal Investment Inc., holding Tokyo Government (1) License (registration) No. 29731, the validity of which is from November 30, 2005, to November 30, 2008; and FGI Principal Co., Ltd., holding Tokyo Government (1) License (registration) No. 29399, the validity of which is from June 30, 2005, to June 30, 2008.

The Company is registered as real estate agent -- Tokyo Government (1) License (registration) No. 88189 -- in accordance with Article 3, Item 1 of the Real Estate Transaction Business Law and undertakes real estate transaction business as part of asset securitization undertaken by the investment banking division. The Company's current license as a real estate agent is valid from September 15, 2007, to September 14, 2012.

Article 5 of the Real Estate Transaction Business Law stipulates reasons for denying a license and Article 66 and Article 67 of the same law describe situations that warrant license cancellation. As of this date, management knows of no reasons or situations that would prevent license approval or cause cancellation of an existing license, but if the Company were unable to renew its license or loses an existing license for any reason whatsoever in the future, such status could impede the execution of business activities and could adversely impact fiscal performance.

Consolidated subsidiary FinTech Real Estate, Inc., is also registered as a real estate agent -- Tokyo Government (1) License (registration) No. 84063 -- and its license is valid from January 22, 2005, to January 21, 2010.

c) Risk of Dilution of Stock Price due to Exercise of Warrants

The Company grants subscription rights as stipulated in Article 280-19 of the old Commercial Code, to members of the Company's Board of Directors, staff and qualified supporters, based on a special resolution passed at the ordinary shareholders' meeting held December 25, 2001, and stock acquisition rights to directors and staff of the Company and directors at subsidiaries and affiliates, as stipulated in Article 280-20 and Article 280-21 of the 2001 revision of the old Commercial Code, based on special resolutions passed at the extraordinary shareholders' meeting held June 16, 2004, and at ordinary shareholders' meetings held December 3, 2004, and December 20, 2005, and resolutions passed at special Board of Directors' meetings held December 1, 2004, December 14, 2004, December 2, 2005, and April 27, 2006. Subscription rights are further granted to employees of the Company as stipulated in Article 236, Article 238 and Article 239 of the Company Law, based on a special resolution passed at the regular shareholders' meeting held December 20, 2006, and a resolution passed at a special Board of Directors' meeting held June 1, 2007.

Management intends to maintain this structure. If currently surviving subscription rights and stock acquisition rights are exercised, the action could dilute the per-share value of the Company's stock.

Compared with 1,202,560 shares outstanding, as of October 31, 2007, the number of new shares to be issued, based on the exercise of stock options, reached 61,190. The Company has set out conditions, such as the period during which rights may be exercised and the number of shares that may be acquired through exercise of rights, in its "Agreement for Granting New Share Subscription Rights," which is a contract between the Company and right holders.

In February 2007, the Company issued the ¥20,000,000,000 Zero Coupon Convertible Bonds due 2012 ("Euroyen convertible bonds), with par value of ¥22,170 million. The Company opted for a conversion price higher than market value to minimize dilution of earnings per share and tacked on a 120% conversion reserve clause to restrict the exercise of warrants. However, it is possible that the per-share value of the Company's stock will be diluted when the warrants attached to this Euroyen convertible bonds are exercised.

Compared with 1,202,560 shares outstanding, as of October 31, 2007, the number of new shares to be issued, based on the exercise of warrants attached to this Euroyen convertible bond, stood at 139,785.

Consolidated subsidiaries have also issued stock acquisition rights.

d) Risks Affecting Fiscal Performance and Financial Position

Seeking to list its stock, the Company embarked on a business expansion plan in fiscal 2002, the fiscal year ended September 30, 2002. Until that point, the Company was essentially run by two people -- Nobumitsu Tamai, current president and CEO, and Ken Fujii, then-chairman -- and one or two large-scale structured finance transactions were sufficient to support operations.

Despite an increase in personnel and successful marketing in fiscal 2002, the Company posted a sizable loss that year, because many securitization transactions initiated that year required between six months and a year to complete and because some transactions were eliminated. To clear prevailing challenges during this re-establishment phase and stabilize the revenue structure, the Company assumed concurrent execution of several transactions and worked to create a structure that would underpin greater efficiency in arrangement operations.

The Company has seen considerable growth in earnings since fiscal 2004, thanks to favorable demand for repeat transactions from existing clients and comparatively steady interest from new clients. Profitability has also improved, owing to the application of a more efficient process for undertaking requests.

In fiscal 2006, the Company entered the reinsurance/financial guarantee business and marked outstanding progress in its principal finance operations through a dramatic increase in fund-procurement capacity.

In fiscal 2007, the Company posted a mixed performance. The acquisition of 44.99% equity in FXO added the FX (foreign exchange) business to the Company's corporate résumé and supported higher consolidated revenue. But profits fell. The Company was unable to close certain property development securitization transactions for large-scale project finance arrangements as planned, leading to lower non-consolidated revenue and profit.

Fiscal 2007 results were also impacted by PITF (Practical Issues Task Force) No. 20, "Practical Solution on Application of Control Criteria and Influence Criteria to Investment Associations," issued by the Accounting Standards Board of Japan on September 8, 2006, which prompted the Company to include in the scope of consolidation special purpose companies (SPCs) set up with transactions arranged by the Company. Previously, such SPCs were excluded from consolidation.

Businesses need the finance industry, of which the Company is a part, to devise innovative financial instruments and financing schemes, and demand for related services is integral to further development of the Group. Therefore, past results alone may not provide all the data necessary for estimating future results. The business model applied by the Company is relatively new to Japan and its merits have not yet been fully demonstrated, so management cannot guarantee revenue growth or sustained profitability. In addition, fiscal results can fluctuate widely, depending on the number of property development securitization transactions undertaken and closed.

e) Market Environment Risk

Generally speaking, real estate is the most common asset used for securitization, and at FGI, real estate-related products, such as property development securitization, are the key components of the Company's current arrangement operations. Consequently, the Group's performance could be negatively influenced by certain trends in the real estate market and changes in legal and tax accounting regulations as applied to real estate securitization.

In a broader sense, the Company's business is affected by changing economic conditions and financial market status. But downturns can be triggered by more than just economic factors; events such as war, terrorism and natural disasters may also cause markets to turn sluggish.

In regard to property development securitization specifically, the discovery of artifacts or environmentally harmful or toxic substances during the construction of a building or a multibuilding project for which the Company has arranged structured finance could delay completion of these buildings.

Any of these situations could have an impact on Group performance.

f) Client Risk

The Company's arrangement services generate income from SPCs, which are established to facilitate the securitization of a specific asset. Since each securitized transaction has its own SPC and thus the revenue provided through securitized transactions is limited to the respective SPC, it is essential that the Company work continuously to form new transactions for new clients. The success or failure of marketing activities could cause Group performance to vary.

g) Principal Finance Risk

In the Group's principal finance operations, certain members of the Group act as suppliers of funds, investing in projects and extending loans to expedite structured finance transactions.

If issues beyond the Group's control, such as deteriorating credit risk in investment or lending targets, changes in the real estate market, or earthquakes, which could damage or destroy investment or lending targets, were to arise, the Group might not secure the anticipated level of return on the funds invested or loaned or the amount may be eroded. Even when industry trends are generally favorable, a trading position may incur losses.

The principal finance balance -- that is, investments and loans -- for the past three years is presented below.

Principal Finance Balance

Years ended September 30

(Millions of yen)

	FY2005		FY2006		FY2007
	First Half	Second Half	First Half	Second Half	First Half	Second Half
New transactions	2,693	6,526	37,340	31,720	26,438	45,182
Selling/refinance/arbitrage	39	4,074	5,344	39,617	24,558	31,882
Loans receivable, trade	3,295	5,747	37,743	29,846	31,726	45,026

Note: Loans receivable, trade and investments in securities, trade are recorded separately on the Consolidated Balance Sheets.

Liquidity and swift fund procurement capabilities are indispensable to the Group's principal finance operations. The inability to maintain sufficient liquidity could prevent clients and partners from pursuing transactions with the Group. The Company, itself, has a short corporate history so access to bank loans, which typically require a well-established credit history, is limited. At the Group level, overall liquidity could be damaged by the tendency among financial institutions to refrain from making large real estate-oriented investments and loans when faced with such factors as market upheaval and heightened regulatory supervision. Management issues that impact clients or third parties could also narrow Group liquidity.

h) Competition Risk

Generally speaking, people with experience in structured finance -- the Group's forte field -- are few and far between in the finance industry as a whole. In-house analysis indicates that services are not keeping pace with rapidly expanding demand for structured finance transactions, such as securitization.

The Company boasts an efficient service structure that hinges on a small team of people rather than an excessively large non-marketing division to promote resourceful business development. This structure makes it possible to respond cost-effectively to the need for small-scale, low-profit transactions and ensures the Company's ability to offer services to midsized business groups as well as major corporations.

However, competition over transactions would intensify if a mega financial group, based either in Japan or abroad, were to expand into the specialized realm that the Group currently profiles, if a boutique-style investment bank providing services similar to those offered by the Group were established with access to expert knowledge, such as that amassed by former employees of the Company, or other companies enter this business and successfully overcome entry barriers, namely the need for service efficiency, a skilled workforce and standardized financial technologies. Heightened competition could hurt the Group's performance.

i) Outdated Financial Technology Risk

The Company continually strives to keep its financial technologies innovative and cutting-edge. But financial technologies touch on law, accounting, taxation, statistics and mathematics, and daily changes to any aspect will cause the overall technologies to evolve, so failure to consistently upgrade or replace existing financial technologies and apply improvements to marketable financial products could lead to outdated and less competitive financial technologies in use. If this happened, the Company's performance could be severely reduced.

The inability to secure high-level technologies would present more of a problem to the Company than to its rivals in the finance industry because the Company has made a name for itself as a producer of financial products, and financial products hinge on financial technologies.

j) Risks pursuant to Reinsurance/Financial Guarantee Business

In the reinsurance/financial guarantee business, certain members of the Group underwrite guarantees on risk inherent in arrangements packaged by the Group - credit enhancement -- as well as rent guarantees, restitution costs and coverage for household effects. The risks involved in underwriting credit enhancement and insurance are far greater than the risks incurred in arrangement operations. If actual losses were to exceed profits in the reinsurance/financial guarantee business or conditions in international insurance markets were adversely affected by terrorist acts or other events with major consequences, the fiscal performance of the Group and its financial position could be seriously impacted.

k) Risks associated with Strategic Investments, Mergers, Joint Ventures and Entry into New Businesses as well as Aspects of Uncertainty

The Group seeks to reinforce its core business through internal expansion and development as well as through strategic investments, mergers and joint ventures. Various risks and uncertainties emerge in the execution of strategic investments, mergers and joint ventures, including issues associated with management controls, the consolidation and integration of relevant services and systems, the standardization of accounting and data-processing systems, and relationship adjustments with clients and business partners. It may be difficult to achieve desired levels of synergy, project efficiency and cost reduction.

A great deal of weight is placed on systems, administration and personnel in determining the success of a joint venture, but such aspects of a business are not under the Company's complete control. In addition, conflicts and differences of opinion between joint venture partners and participating Group members could hurt the Group's overall business prospects. Another concern is the possible dilution of existing shares caused by the issue of new shares upon the realization of a merger or the establishment of a joint venture.

Vast resources are expended to reinforce current operations, enter new businesses and create new products, and these efforts may incur considerable but unexpected losses, costs and monetary obligations. Business expansion and the pursuit of mergers and joint ventures obviously require management's attention, but the concentration of management expertise in these areas leaves a gap in other areas. Lopsided allocation of resources -- both monetary and executive -- could weaken the Company's capital and equity positions and oversight capabilities, which could in turn seriously effect Group management.

The Group intends to extend structured finance operations to business in markets other than the real estate market. The successful establishment of a presence in other markets hinges on the ability to accurately identify demand for structured finance in each market. If efforts fail, the Group's performance and its financial position could suffer.

l) Business and Financial Risks Caused by the Acquisition of Equity in FXOnline Japan

In January 2007 and again in March of the same year, the Company purchased stock in FXOnline Japan Co., Ltd. (FXO), a young, unlisted company, and made it a consolidated subsidiary. FXO provides online forex margin trading services to individuals, a business focus that holds tremendous growth potential.

However, the Group's investment in FXO is considerable, given the scale of the Group's operations, and the business activities of FXO could exert a major negative impact on the Group's business as a whole for the following reasons.

- 1) While FXO falls under FGI's consolidated umbrella, FGI does not have management authority over the business because the number of shares purchased by the Company does not represent the majority of total outstanding shares with voting rights, and under the terms set forth in the stock purchase agreement between FGI and FXO, management authority remains with the shareholder and founding member of FXO who sold shares to FGI. In addition, regardless of the vast investment by FGI in FXO, the business undertaken by FXO may not go in the direction that FGI envisions and the returns expected by FGI on its investment may not be achieved.
- 2) Along with the purchase of stock in FXO, the FGI Group assumed about ¥7.0 billion in goodwill. This amount was derived by deducting FXO's net assets from the amount paid for FXO stock and will be amortized over five years. Management expects FXO to generate profits in these five years that exceeds the amortization amount, but this performance is not guaranteed. If FXO's business activities do not proceed as planned, the Group might have to record as a loss all or part of the unamortized amount that still remains at that time, which could have a significantly detrimental impact on the performance of the Group.
- 3) FXO has achieved rapid growth using a revolutionary business model that debuted upon the company's establishment in 2002. But the company's corporate governance structure, including internal control systems, is still under development since rapid business expansion is not over yet. That is, a final governance structure is difficult to implement as long as business is growing at the current rate.

Consequently, efforts to enhance corporate governance and recruit the necessary personnel could cause expenses to bloom. Moreover, failure to implement a suitable corporate governance structure could prompt regulatory action by the relevant authorities.

In its provision of online services to individuals, FXO handles a diverse range of confidential information, including personal data, protected under Japan's constitution. If the company were to violate such laws and regulations, including errors in the handling of personal data, the company would be subject to regulatory action, which could severely tarnish the company's reputation.

In addition, the company relies heavily on service providers for both hardware and software. If these service providers, which have no capital alliances with the company, fail to provide accurate, uninterrupted services, FXO might sustain serious damage to the continuity of its own services.

FXO has enjoyed a steady increase in client numbers but violent fluctuations in exchange rates could lead to major losses for clients, which might cause the company's client base to crumble.

m) Risks related to Restrictive Financial Covenants

Some of the loans the Company has taken from financial institutions carry restrictive financial covenants based on the value of Net Assets recorded on the consolidated and non-consolidated balance sheets at the interim and year-end settlements each business year and on ordinary profit recorded on the consolidated and non-consolidated statements of income at the year-end settlement each business year. If these amounts run counter to stated covenants, the Company will forfeit profits up to the limit claimed by the lending bank, or banks. Should this occur, other lending banks might also claim a certain amount of profits and demand immediate repayment of the full amount of respective loans. This could have a seriously disadvantageous outcome on the performance and financial position of the Group.

If certain events of default were to appear in regard to the February 2007 issue of Euroyen convertible bonds -- total par value of ¥22,170 million -- with stock acquisition rights due in 2012, the trustee may, at its discretion, call for the immediate redemption of said bonds and will notify the Company of this decision, and if bondholders having more than one-quarter of the surviving face value of the bonds when events of default appear request notification of a decision to seek the forfeiture of profits within the limits of said bonds or an extraordinary resolution by bondholders indicates that such a request will occur, the trustee will notify the Company of forfeiture of profits within the limits of said bonds.

Should such a scenario come to pass, the Company might be forced to redeem the entire amount early, which could seriously erode the Group's performance and financial position.

n) Risk of Reliance on Liabilities with interest

The Group acquires some of the funds used in principal finance operations through loans from financial institutions. The ratio of liabilities with interest to total assets stood at 52.0%, at September 30, 2006, and 53.3%, at September 30, 2007, indicating an upward trend. Principal finance operations are one wheel of the investment banking cart -- the other being arrangement services, which the Company has undertaken since before its stock listing -- and have become a key source of profit.

Accordingly, if current interest levels change, the Group's performance and financial position could be affected. But interest rates on the funds extended through principal finance operations would also rise, so the impact of higher interest rates is not necessarily all bad.

However, the inability to acquire loans from banks, as planned, could impact the execution of business activities, so the Group will actively seek to diversify its fund-procurement methods.

II. Group Status

The Group comprises FinTech Global Incorporated (FGI), 23 consolidated subsidiaries and four unconsolidated subsidiaries and operates as a boutique investment bank.

FGI is at the core of the Group. Unlike megabanks, which offer various services over a diverse financial spectrum, the Company focuses solely on structured finance and pursues high-level, specialized investment banking services.

Major subsidiaries are described below.

FinTech Global Securities, Inc. (FGS), acts as an agent for products, such as loan credits and investment securities, arranged by FGI and sells overseas alternative funds.

FinTech Real Estate, Inc. (FRE), seeks to capitalize on real estate-related profit opportunities, such as brokerage and silent partnership investments, that derive from arrangements put together by FGI.

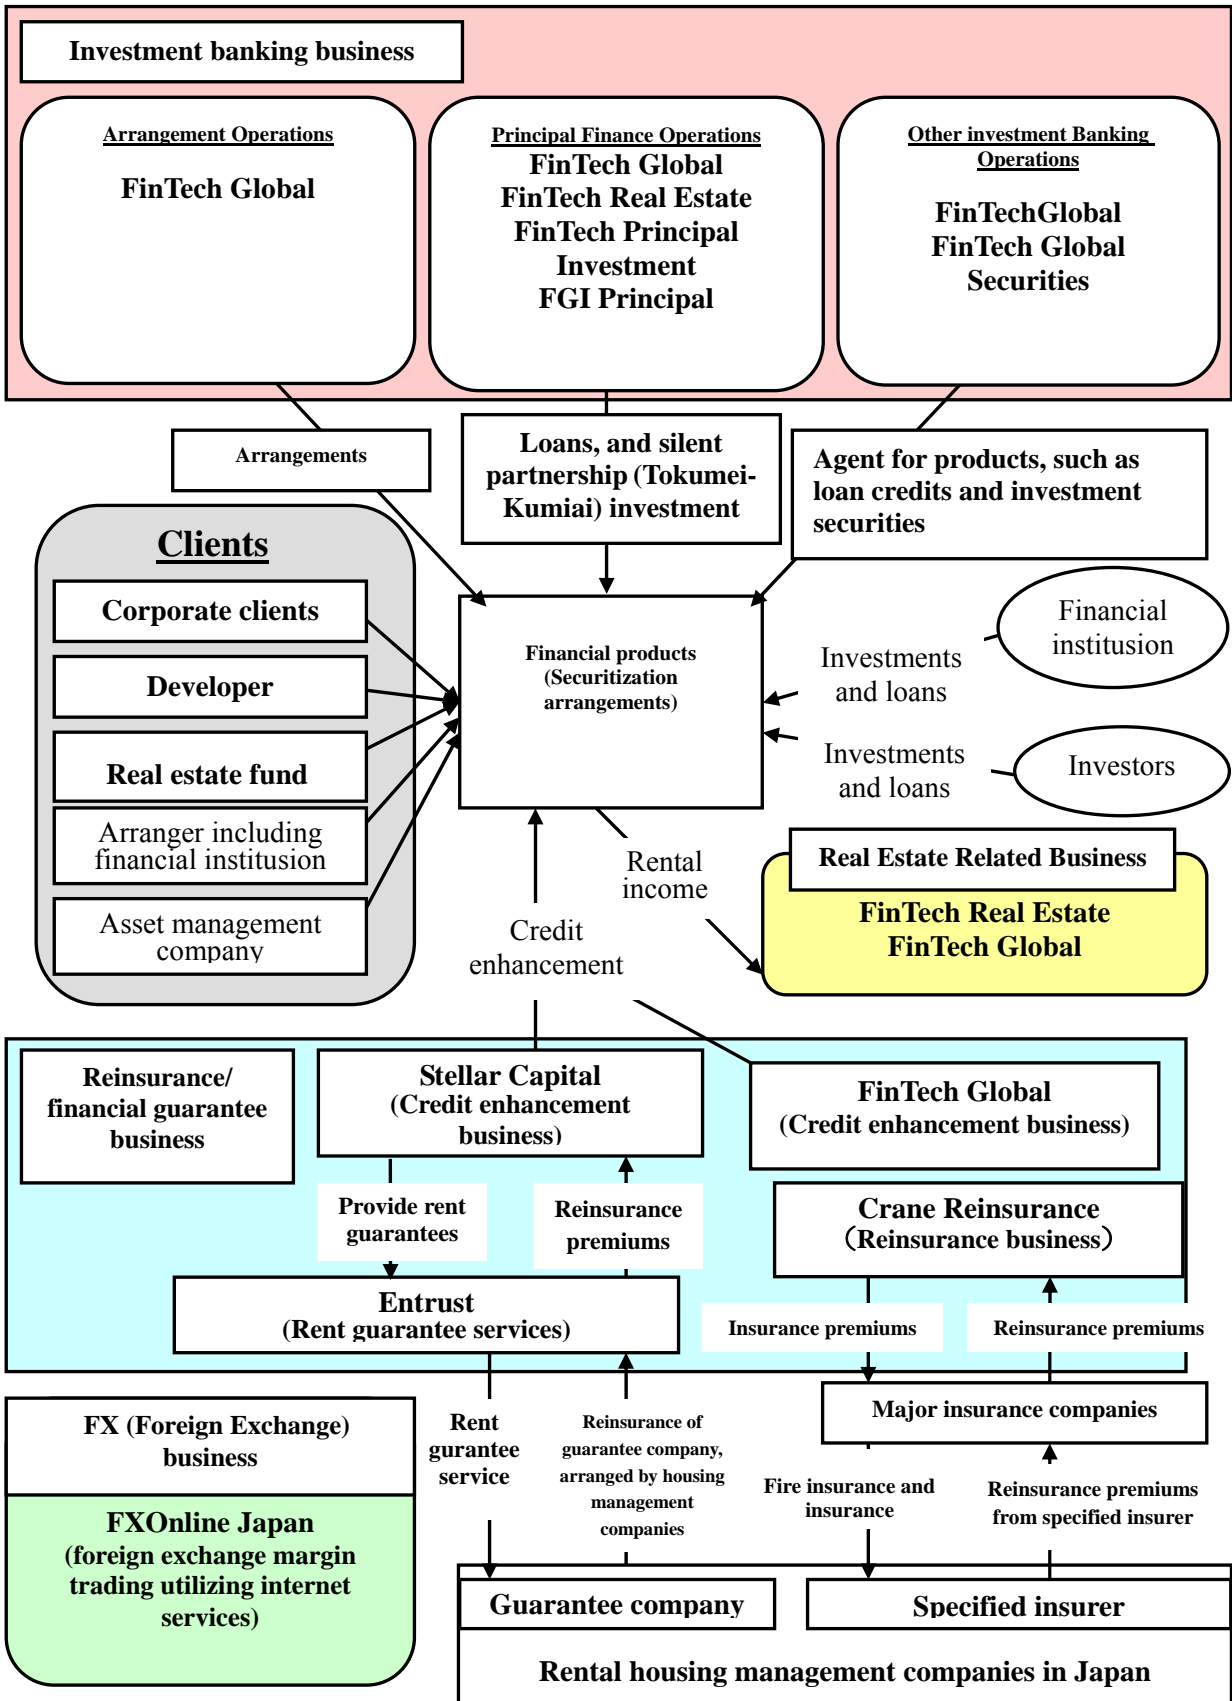

Entrust, Inc., offers major national and regional rental housing management companies in Japan guarantee services to guarantee rent in the event tenants are in arrears and to guarantee restitution costs in the event tenants are evicted Switzerland-based Group member Stellar Capital AG provides final underwriting on Entrust's guarantees to facilitate one-stop services for property management companies who are clients of the FGI Group. Stellar Capital itself underwrites credit enhancement facilities incorporated into certain arrangements packaged by FGI.

Crane Reinsurance Limited, operating in Bermuda, underwrites reinsurance, primarily policies held by major property management companies in Japan to cover the household affects of tenants.

FXOnline Japan Co., Ltd. (FXO), was brought into the Group as a consolidated subsidiary through the purchase of stock in January 2007 and March 2007 for an aggregate equity holding of 44.99%. The company is engaged in online forex margin trading.

III. Management Policy

1. Basic Direction

Group operations comprise four segments: investment banking business, reinsurance/financial guarantee business, FX (Foreign Exchange) business and real estate related business.

Investment banking business consist of three activities: 1) arrangement operations, through which FGI packages structured finance transactions into specialized arrangements; 2) principal finance operations, which generate lender-based profits, from loans extended by the Company to facilitate transactions arranged by the Company, and investor-based profits, from participation in certain transactions; and 3) other investment banking operations, such as administrative services linked to transactions arranged by the Company, and services provided by subsidiary FGS.

FGI's key strength lies in its ability to combine the benefits of these three investment banking activities into a comprehensive tool that maximizes financing possibilities for clients. Demand for structured finance is growing in all industries and from companies big and small, spurred by the introduction of asset-impairment accounting and wider interest in off-balance-sheet allocation of corporate assets, as well as a sustained welcome for real estate-securitized products and diversifying requests for securitized money claims. The business environment for FGI is ideal.

The reinsurance/financial guarantee business hinges on Stellar Capital and Crane Reinsurance. The addition of credit enhancement to an arrangement packaged by FGI raises the stability of the transaction, and final underwriting of guarantees extended by Entrust for late rent and restitution costs rounds out the Group's reinsurance/financial guarantee capabilities.

The FX (Foreign Exchange) business is essentially the online forex margin trading business undertaken by FXO. In the future, FGI plans to sell financial products created by the Group to individual investors through its securities subsidiary and other Group members. FXO has the technical expertise and management know-how needed for information technology-facilitated personal online trading, and the company's inclusion under the FGI Group umbrella bodes well for the establishment of the necessary business base.

Real estate related business is primarily built around FRE, which undertakes brokerage, purchase, sale and rental of properties. The goal is to capitalize on real estate-connected profit opportunities generated through property development securitization arrangements packaged by FGI.

The most effective keys to continued growth of the Group are the acquisition of new financial technologies and the creation of innovative financial products. To access these keys, FGI must continually watch for improvements in financial technologies with particular relevance to law, accounting, taxation, statistics and mathematics, and successfully obtain and apply these technologies. The Company must always strive to maintain financial technologies that are innovative and cutting edge to underpin the development of marketable financial products.

2. Indicators of Business Performance

Primarily because of the changing business content of Group activities and new accounting treatment standards, management has decided to make return on equity (ROE) and the debt-to-equity ratio key indicators of business performance for the Group, effective from fiscal 2008.

The medium- to long-term target for ROE is 15%, which will be achieved by a continued emphasis on arrangement fees -- a source of high profits that reflects the high-value-added financial technologies and financial know-how inherent in arrangement services -- to buoy profitability, and by raising investment and loan turnover through diversification of fund procurement and liquidation of claims on loan receivables, trade to strengthen principal finance operations.

As an indicator of stability, the debt-to-equity ratio will replace the equity ratio used previously. The goal will be to maintain a level appropriately matched to changes in the scope of business and evolving risk amounts.

3. Medium- to Long-term Management Strategies

a) Main Products

The Company's main product is real estate securitization, particularly property development securitization.

Instead of typical fund-based securitization, which is simply a pre-harvest instrument, FGI arranges complete project finance securitization with no exits (buyers after construction completed). This format is more in line with developers' needs and has drawn their interest.

In-house research indicates that property development securitization is less susceptible to changes in the economic environment than other types of real estate-related financial products. Demand for development capital exists even in a depressed real estate market, and FGI's ability to offer property development securitization is particularly appealing now, when financial institutions are cutting back on lending activities.

FGI aims to improve its arrangement processing capacity by hiring more employees and upgrading their skills through education and training programs. Efforts will also be directed toward aggressively cultivating business opportunities that lead to real estate-related arrangements, a process that will further reinforce core operations. Careful selection of transactions for development projects will ensure suitable risk-return.

The Company will shift its business focus from large-scale project finance to more reliable small and medium-sized transactions and strive to broaden its client base.

b) Derivative Products

FGI anticipates the completion of a number of projects, including block investment condominiums, for which the Company arranges property development securitization transactions. Many business opportunities will derive from these transactions, such as liquidation of real estate for profit and structuring for privately placed investment funds, and thereby sustain real estate-related products as a key category of the Company's product lineup.

c) Product Development

The popularity of FGI's main products has paved a solid business foundation for the Company. To build on this and ensure management and fiscal performance stability, FGI will aggressively apply management resources, mainly personnel assets and financial capacity, to the development of new products and, more specifically, products that hit a chord with the market.

In this effort, the Company will prioritize the forte field of credit enhancement services, which integrate aspects of financing and insurance.

d) Principal Finance

FGI itself acts as a provider of funds, in the capacity of an investor or a lender, for use in structured finance arrangements packaged by the Company. The financial vehicles include tokumei kumiai (silent partnerships), mezzanine loans and others.

With improved financial capabilities, the Company has capitalized on opportunities to execute principal finance, thereby boosting its investment and loan balance. Given the inability to close some large-scale project finance transactions in fiscal 2007 because of the credit crunch triggered by the subprime mortgage crisis, the Company will emphasize efforts to complement funds from existing lenders with direct contributions, from investors at home and abroad, and shift principal loan securitization off the balance sheet through sales and arbitrage, thereby squeezing total assets -- that is, preventing a decline in return on assets and stemming a rise in liabilities -- while securing profits through arbitrage transactions.

e) Reinsurance/Financial Guarantee Business

FGI established Stellar Capital in Switzerland in March 2006 to provide credit enhancement services, which enhance the stability of transactions arranged by the Company and facilitate successful arrangements with assets previously considered impractical for securitization.

Stellar Capital also provides final underwriting on Entrust's guarantees, which underpins a one-stop structure to meet clients' guarantee needs from within the Group.

Crane Reinsurance was also established in March 2006 in Bermuda as 100% owned subsidiary of Stellar Capital, to underwrite reinsurance on healthy risks, primarily policies held by major property management companies in Japan to cover the household affects of tenants. Revisions to the Insurance Business Law prompted the creation of new reinsurance underwriting schemes, which should be in place by April 1, 2008. Crane Reinsurance will strive to maintain existing clients by quickly building a new scheme geared to the transition of specialized underwriters into small-claim, short-term insurance businesses.

4. Issues Requiring Attention

a) Diversification of Fund Contributions and Securitization of Principal Finance Credits

Securing stable lenders is imperative to arrangement operations, and in light of the fact that the credit crunch triggered by the subprime mortgage crisis hampered FGI's ability to close certain large-scale project finance transactions planned for fiscal 2007, the Company will seek to create a system that facilitates fund procurement directly from mezzanine- and equity-oriented investors at home and abroad to complement funds from existing lenders, namely financial institutions.

The securitization of principal finance credits was postponed, primarily by a delay in establishing a structure that would allow FGS to market such securitized credits. Marketing efforts finally got underway the second half of fiscal 2007.

The next task will be to reinforce the structure and aggressively promote securitized principal finance credits. This will make investment and loan activities within the Group more efficient and lead to an improved ROE.

b) Product Development

Property development securitization will remain a major product for the Group, but the Company will apply management resources, namely personnel assets and financial capacity, to actively pursue research and development and accelerate the introduction of new products. The spotlight will be on credit enhancement services, a highly promising field integrating aspects of finance and insurance.

c) Maintaining Skilled Personnel

Demand for structured finance currently outpaces the availability of staff skilled in the techniques required. In response, the Company will strive to enhance talents through on-the-job training and cultivate the capabilities of mid-level employees who form the backbone of operations.

Hiring plans for fiscal 2008 call for the recruitment of about 16 carefully selected employees, including recent graduates, with an innovative spirit and an appetite for challenges.

d) Group Companies

FGI will maintain the direction set in the second half of fiscal 2007, continuing to enhance Group management, reassessing business plans and striving to effectively utilize groupwide management resources. Where necessary, a scrap-and-build perspective will prevail.

e) Risk Management

From fiscal 2008, FGI will implement risk management based on a quantification of risk and return and enhance its ability to respond to changes in financial and real estate markets. Risks controlled independently by each operating division will be managed comprehensively to achieve management stability and an even fiscal performance.

consolidated financial statements		expenses. In allocating those expenses, the total assets are allocated between the assets for business transactions and other assets, and based on the balance of the allocated assets, the financing expenses for the operating assets are classified as the cost of revenue, and the financing expenses for other assets are classified as other expense on the consolidated statements of income. (Change in accounting policy) Financing expenses on the loans associated with individual investments or financings had been classified as cost of revenue and financing expenses on the loans which could not be traced to individual fund requirement had been classified as other expense. However, due to the increasing the ratio of the financing expenses which could not be traced to individual fund requirement, the Company has decided to allocate financing expenses to properly present cost of revenue and other expenses, since the fiscal year 2007. As for the allocation method, the total assets are allocated between the assets for business transactions and other assets, and based on the balance of the allocated assets, the financing expenses for the operating assets are classified as the cost of revenue, and the financing expenses for other assets are classified as other expense on the consolidated statements of income. Along with the change, “bank loans, trade” is reclassified to “short-term debt” or “long-term debt” based on the term of payment. As a result of the change, the operating income have decreased by ¥174,567 thousands compared to what would have been reported under the previous presentation, but there is no impact on the ordinary profit in the consolidated statements of income. Current liabilities have decreased by ¥565,000 thousands, and long-term liabilities have increased by the same amount. In the consolidated statement of cash flows, cash flows on operating activities have increased by ¥2,699,325 thousands and cash flows on financing activities have decreased by the same amount. Additionally, as for the breakdown of cash flows on operating activities, interest expenses included in the cost of revenues and in other expenses are combined and classified as to “cost of funds and interest expenses”.
5. Valuation of assets and liabilities of consolidated subsidiaries	Assets and liabilities of the consolidated subsidiaries are initially recorded at fair value.	Same as at left.
6. Amortization of Goodwill	Goodwill is amortized by the straight-line method over five years.	Same as at left.
7. Cash and Cash Equivalents	In preparing the consolidated statement of cash flows, the Company considers all highly liquid investments with an insignificant risk of changes in value and with original maturities of three months or less to be cash equivalents.	Same as at left

Changes in Accounting Principles

(Impairment Loss on Fixed Assets) In fiscal 2006, the Company adopted the new accounting standard “Accounting for Impairment of Fixed Assets (Opinion Concerning Establishment of Accounting Standard for Impairment of Fixed Assets)” issued by the Business Accounting Deliberation Council on August 9, 2002 and “Implement Guidance for the Accounting Standard for Impairment of Fixed Assets” (Financial Accounting Standard Implementation Guidance No.6 issued on October 31, 2003). The application of the new standards had no impact on the Company’s results of operation. (Presentation of Net Assets on the Balance Sheet) In fiscal 2006, the Company adopted the new accounting standard “Accounting Standard for Presentation of Net Assets on the Balance Sheet” (Accounting Standard Board Statement No.5 issued on December 9, 2005) and “Financial Accounting Implementation Guidance on Presentation of Net Assets on the Balance Sheet” (Financial Accounting Implementation Guidance No.8 issued on December 9, 2005). Total shareholders’ equity would have been ¥24,887,966 thousand under the previous accounting standard.	————— (Stock options) On December 27, 2005, Accounting Standard Boards of Japan issued “Accounting Standard for Stock Options” and related guidance. The new standard and guidance are applicable to stock options newly granted on and after May 1, 2006. As a result of this change, there is a minimal impact on income and losses in the consolidated financial statements compared to what would have been reported under the previous accounting standard.

Hedge accounting is applied for the derivative transactions. Hedged instruments are the borrowings and hedging instruments are interest rate swaps, which could be accounted for by the special treatment. Interest rate swaps are utilized within the amount of hedged borrowings to hedge an interest rate risk.  With respect to foreign exchange margin tradings of the subsidiary, their capital and the customers’ trading accounts are separately administrated in accordance with the rules over foreign exchange margin tradings to properly preserve the trust assets of the customers. Moreover, for self-position arising from the transactions with the customers, the Company hedges associated foreign exchange risks by excuting covering transactions with counterparties. (3) Risks on the transactions Interest rate swap and interest rate cap transactions are subject to risks of fluctuations in market interest rate. The transactions are entitled with only the high-rated financial institutions. Therefore, the Company does not anticipate any losses rising from credit risk.  After entering into contracts with customers, the foreign exchange margin tradings are subject to foreign exchange risks until the execution of covering transactions. The Company does not anticipate significant losses arising from the customers’ nonfulfillments of contracts since the Company receives additional deposits from the customers or settles the customers’ balance all or in part compulsively if they do not have any balance in deposits. In addition, the Company does not anticipate any losses rising from the clients’ failure of contracts since covering transactionis with the counterparties are entitled with only the high-rated financial institutions. (4) Risk management structure Derivative transactions are executed by the treasury department upon appropriate approval in accordance with the internal policies which regulate authorization and the maximum amount to transactions, etc.  The subsidiary carrying out foreign exchange margin tradings apply the policies of foreign exchange position management to hedge foreign exchange risks arising from the foreign exchange margin tradings with the customers.

1. Amount and account used to recognize expenses

		(Thousands of yen)
Cost of revenue:	Stock compensation expense	¥ 246
Selling, general and administrative expenses:	Stock compensation expense	¥ 4,728

Certain consolidated subsidiaries granted stock options during the fiscal year 2007. The stock options granted by consolidated subsidiaries and treasury stock options were accounted for by the intrinsic value method, instead of the fair value method, allowed for privately held companies in accordance with the "Accounting Standards for Stock Options." No expense was recognized for the stock options granted by the consolidated subsidiaries and treasury stock options because intrinsic value at the grant date was estimated at zero.

3. Valuation technique used for valuating fair value of stock options granted in the fiscal year

(1) Fifth stock acquisition rights granted by FinTech Global Incorporated in the fiscal year were estimated using the following valuation.

(i) Valuation technique: Black-Scholes option pricing model

(ii) Principal parameters used in the option-pricing model

	Categorised in A in Note (*3) in 2(1)	Categorised in B in Note (*3) in 2(1)	Categorised in C in Note (*3) in 2(1)	Categorised in D in Note (*3) in 2(1)
Expected volatility	64.909%	64.909%	64.909%	64.909%
Average expected life	5.75 years	6.25 years	6.75 years	7.25 years
Expected dividends	¥1,050	¥1,050	¥1,050	¥1,050
Risk-free interest rate	1.486%	1.523%	1.568%	1.610%

Notes: 1. This is calculated based on monthly stock prices in the past (the closing prices at the last trading day of each month from June, 2005 to May, 2007).

2. The average expected life could not be estimated rationally due to insufficient amount of data.

Therefore, it was estimated assuming that the options were exercised at the mid point of the exercise period. This is calculated based on monthly stock prices in the past (the closing prices at the last trading day of each month from June, 2005 to May, 2007).

3. The actual dividends on common stock during the last year

4. Japanese government bond yield, as of June 4 2007, corresponding to the average expected life.

(2) First stock acquisition rights (treasury stock option) and second stock acquisition rights (stock option) granted by FX Online Japan Co., Ltd.

Those stock options were accounted for by the intrinsic value method since the company is a privately held company. The stock value of FX Online Japan Co., Ltd. used in the calculation of intrinsic value was determined by the Sales Comparison approach.

The intrinsic value of those stock options granted by the company during the fiscal year 2007 was estimated at zero.

(3) First stock acquisition rights (stock option) and Second stock acquisition rights (stock option) granted by Entrust, Inc.

Those stock options were accounted for by the intrinsic value method since the company is a privately held company. The stock value of Entrust, Inc. used in the calculation of intrinsic value was determined by net assets method.

The intrinsic value of those stock options granted by the company during the fiscal year 2007 was estimated at zero.

4. Method of estimating number of stock options vested

With respect to Fifth stock acquisition rights of FinTech Global Incorporated, only the actual number of forfeited stock options is reflected to determine the number of stock options vested because it is difficult to rationally estimate the actual number of stock options that will be forfeited in the future.

The adjustments are recognized as “Net revenue”. (3) Methods for allocating financing expenses Financing expenses of the companies providing with the lending services are classified into financing expenses associated with operating revenues and other financing expenses. In allocating those expenses, the total assets are allocated between the assets for business transactions and other assets, and based on the balance of the allocated assets, the financing expenses for the operating assets are classified as the cost of revenue, and the financing expenses for other assets are classified as other expense on the statements of income. (Change in accounting policy) Financing expenses on the loans associated with individual investments or financings had been classified as cost of revenue and financing expenses on the loans which could not be traced to individual fund requirement had been classified as other expense. However, due to the increasing the ratio of the financing expenses which could not be traced to individual fund requirement, the Company has decided to allocate financing expenses of the companies providing with the lending services to properly present cost of revenue and other expenses, since the fiscal year 2007. As for the allocation method, the total assets are allocated between the assets for business transactions and other assets, and based on the balance of the allocated assets, the financing expenses for the operating assets are classified as the cost of revenue, and the financing expenses for other assets are classified as other expense on the statements of income. Along with the change, “bank loans, trade” is reclassified to “short-term debt” or “long-term debt” based on the term of payment.  As a result of the change, the operating income have decreased by ¥174,567 thousands compared to what would have been reported under the previous presentation, but there is no impact on the ordinary profit in the statements of income. Current liabilities have decreased by ¥565,000 thousands, and long-term liabilities have increased by the same amount.

Change in Accounting Principles

Fiscal Year 2006 (From October 1, 2005 to September 30, 2006)	Fiscal Year 2007 (From October 1, 2006 to September 30, 2007)
(Impairment Loss on Fixed Assets)                      In fiscal 2006, the Company adopted the new accounting standard “Accounting for Impairment of Fixed Assets (Opinion Concerning Establishment of Accounting Standard for Impairment of Fixed Assets)” issued by the Business Accounting Deliberation Council on August 9, 2002 and “Implement Guidance for the Accounting Standard for Impairment of Fixed Assets” (Financial Accounting Standard Implementation Guidance No.6 issued on October 31, 2003).                      The application of the new standards had no impact on the Company’s results of operation. (Presentation of Net Assets on the Balance Sheet)                      In fiscal 2006, the Company adopted the new accounting standard “Accounting Standard for Presentation of Net Assets on the Balance Sheet” (Accounting Standard Board Statement No.5 issued on December 9, 2005) and “Financial Accounting Implementation Guidance on Presentation of Net Assets on the Balance Sheet” (Financial Accounting Implementation Guidance No.8 issued on December 9, 2005).                      Total shareholders’ equity would have been ¥24,896,403 thousand under the previous accounting standard.	_____ _____ (Stock options)                      On December 27, 2005, Accounting Standard Boards of Japan issued “Accounting Standard for Stock Options” and related guidance. The new standard and guidance are applicable to stock options newly granted on and after May 31, 2006.                      As a result of this change, there is a minimal impact on income and losses in the financial statements compared to what would have been reported under the previous accounting standard.
